Qualification Overview

These qualifications focus on the learner's ability to use computing and mobile devices to buy goods and services online and administer and manage transactions and finances online, all whilst staying safe legally and confidently.

The increase in the use of digital technology as a route for engagement and activity across government and business has led to both national and local government making significant investment in enhancing their digital infrastructure and making public services 'digital'. For individuals to actively participate in modern life, work and society it is vital that they acquire the necessary digital skills, and without them they will be at a significant disadvantage and unable to access the best goods and services.

The Ascentis Entry Level Award (Entry 3) and Level 1 Award in Skills for Digital Transactions have been designed in response to the Essential Digital Skills Framework as 'taster' qualifications which aim to develop and recognise learners' basic digital technology and transacting skills, and their ability to use them in their daily lives.

There are several features of these qualifications that make them very appropriate for their target learners:

- Unit certification is available for each of the units
- Verification and certification can be offered throughout the year, allowing maximum flexibility for centres
- They can be delivered either as a classroom-based course or as a blended learning programme
- Evidence can be generated within a wide range of organisational contexts, allowing the qualifications to meet the specific occupational requirements of the learners

The aims of the qualifications are to enable learners:

- 1 To develop digital technology and transacting skills necessary for life, work and society
